International Year of Light - 2015

The year of 2015 has been declared the International Year of Light (IYL) by the United Nations. Organizations, institutions, and individuals involved in the science and applications of light will be joining together for this year long celebration to help spread the word about the wonders of light. In understanding the quantum nature of light, three major discoveries came from India during 1900 to 1930. The first discovery of Bose statistics by Satyendranath Bose, then the discovery of Saha ionization formula by Meghnad Saha and then the Raman effect by C.V Raman. In the International Year of light, we salute the contribution of these great physicists.
